Press

"a master craftsman, with an arsenal of great one-liners and a particular skill with a pullback and reveal gag"

★★★★ The Scotsman

"framed by his bespectacled, everyman appearance, working-class horizons and near-deadpan delivery, cracked with an endearing grin whenever a bit truly lands, he's a veritable poet, reconstituting the mundane and commonplace with some truly audacious flights of fantasy."

★★★★ Fest Mag

"his unfailing light-hearted wit will captivate you and have you doubling over in equal measure"

★★★★★ Entertainment Now

“Every generation needs joke writers like him – it’s one of the rarest and most precious disciplines to be able to work creatively within the one-liner format while still threading them into a coherent narrative.”

★★★★★ Chortle

“while his persona is distinctly low status and self-deprecating he has deceptively impressive control over his audience.”

★★★★★ Beyond The Joke

“a comedic brain which knows exactly which buttons to press and when.”
